HORSEMANSHIP LESSONS

* with Brent Graef *

See On-Line videos at www.BrentGraef.com

Brent Graef is dedicated to helping people find a way to offer their horses a better deal...to see things from their horse's perspective and work WITH them instead of against them. Brent has a gentle, yet effective way of working with both horses and their owners.

Communicating with the horse is more than just getting progressively firmer until they do what you want. It's about preparing the horse and learning ways to make the right thing obvious. It's about learning how to listen to your horse and learning how to offer "feel" and improve your timing. Fix it up so they can do it on their own. This is how you build on their pride. You want your horse to WANT to do the things you ask; not just do enough to stay out of trouble by evading pressure.

Brent has a gift for teaching and feels blessed to be able to share the information he's learned with so many people.

DO YOU NEED HELP WITH YOUR HORSE ?

Brent can help you with just about anything, whether it be trailer loading, standing to mount, or picking up the feet, or more advanced ridden maneuvers.

Regardless of your riding discipline you will be given new viewpoints that will make you contemplate much more about your riding and horsemanship than ever before and help you to have a better relationship with your horse. There's no better way to advance your horsemanship journey than with this rare opportunity of one-on-one time with Brent.

Brent's views on horsemanship have been influenced by the teachings of some great horsemen... among them, Buck Brannaman, Ray Hunt, Joe Wolter, Ronnie Willis, and Tom and Bill Dorrance.

Colts are welcome to participate in groundwork sessions, riders being coached through ridden work must be on horses already going under saddle.
